

DISCLAIMER

The materials and information contained in the Serko & Simon LLP website are provided for informational purposes only, and do not constitute the legal advice of Serko & Simon LLP or any of its attorneys.

The information provided on this website is general in nature and therefore may not reflect current legal developments on specific issues. Visitors to the site should not act or refrain from acting on the basis of any information contained herein without first seeking legal counsel. Serko & Simon LLP expressly disclaims all liability in respect to actions taken or not taken based on any or all the content of this website.

Serko & Simon LLP provides information and links to third-party content via this website, but does not necessarily endorse the views of third-parties that may be accessed through this website. Rather, links are provided for informational purposes only, and Serko & Simon LLP expressly disclaims all liability in respect to actions taken or not taken based upon the content of any third-party website accessed through the Serko & Simon LLP website.

Operation and/or use of this website does not create an attorney-client relationship with any recipients. Further, communication with Serko & Simon LLP via electronic mail through this website does not create an attorney-client relationship between Serko & Simon LLP and any senders and/or any recipients. If you wish to convey any confidential information to Serko & Simon LLP, a formal attorney-client relationship must first be established, which cannot take place via our internet website. Such a relationship can only be established by a formal agreement to handle a particular matter.

Any information sent via the Serko & Simon LLP website may not be secure. Furthermore, in the absence of an attorney-client relationship, it may be transmitted by the sender on a non-confidential basis.